State Helps Families Explore Career Options in Indiana's High Demand Industries

This Thursday, the Indiana Commission for Higher Education and Chapelwood Elementary School of Wayne Township will host a Family Career Night to help parents enroll in the state's Next Level Jobs Workforce Ready Grant program and inform students of various careers in the state's most dynamic industries.

The event kicks off the state's annual Career Ready campaign, which aims to help students and families identify interests and link them to relevant career options. The focus of this year's event is on Indiana's highest demand industries: Advanced Manufacturing, Building and Construction, Health and Life Sciences, Information Technology (IT) and Business Services, and Transportation and Logistics. Local employers and representatives from Ivy Tech Community College and Vincennes University will be present to answer any questions.
