Description: This preserve is a fine example of the many land forms associated with the Valparaiso Moraine. The Valparaiso Moraine runs for several hundred miles from southern Wisconsin through northern Illinois and northwest Indiana into west-central Michigan. The moraine was formed by the southern edge of the Lake Michigan Lobe of Wisconsinan glaciations. The nature preserve contains a combination of rolling ridges, steep hills, muck pockets, pot holes, and a shallow pond. Mature beech-maple forest is found on some of the uplands and ravines. Buttonbush and black willow surround a number of pot holes and ponds. Several upland areas are in various stages of succession.
