Technical Guide for Library Redistricting

For the definition of public library district service areas and calculation of service area population data
following the 2020 Census

Katie Springer
Indiana State Data Center (SDC)
Updated February 2025

Introduction

This guide is for use in determining library district population totals following the decennial census.
The decennial census is an actual count of a geographic area and not just an estimate, which is why we wait for the redistricting data (PL 94-171) to be released following the decennial census in order to determine official library district population numbers.

The guide lists geographic areas covered by each library district in Indiana, by district and by county, denoting whether the area is covered by tax or by contract, as of the end of the 2020 Census redistricting period (September 2023).

Libraries make changes to district boundaries and coverage areas throughout the decade by contacting the Indiana State Library's Library Development Office (LDO). Any changes between each decennial census must be noted on the LDO TABLE 1 so calculations of population totals remain accurate.

Before beginning library redistricting work, check with the LDO to update any changes to district boundaries beyond what is in the current version of Table 1 or in this 2023 guide.

Once the 2030 Census PL 94-171 redistricting data has been released, access current data for geographic areas using the Census Bureau's data tool, Data.Census.gov.

You can use this guide along with Table 1 and the most current versions of Indiana township maps (StatsIndiana) and 2030 Census tract and block maps (Census Bureau), which are released with the PL 94-171 data, to complete your work.

Access files from 2010 Census and 2020 Census library redistricting here:
P:\LDO\Census\2020 Census Library Redistricting Files

> A number of Indiana library districts require additional detail work and/or the use of GIS in completing the calculation of their population totals. These districts are marked with an asterisk () in the guide. Find detailed instructions for calculations in Appendices A and B, listed by library district.

See the School District Interactive Map on StatsIndiana: https://www.stats.indiana.edu/maptools/schooldistrictsmap.asp

To calculate the population total for the district by hand, use the redistricting data (PL 94-171) for each block within Batesville Community School Corporation. Add these to Ray Township and Laughery Township.

For the 2020 Census library redistricting process, IBRC ran a report showing all 2020 Census blocks within the Batesville Community School district boundaries.

We also had assistance from the Indiana GIO, who created a special map of the district and estimated the population number based on the 2020 Census block layer.

For the 2030 Census library redistricting process, use GIS to layer the Batesville Community School district boundaries over the 2030 Census block boundaries. Add the population of the two townships to the total population covered by the census blocks within the school district boundaries. Enter into Table 1.

Additional files are here under Batesville: P:\LDO\Census\2020 Census Library Redistricting Files

For the 2020 Census library redistricting process, the State Geographic Information Office (GIO) assisted us. Once we completed library district boundaries for the Library District Interactive Map with the IBRC, we shared shape files with the GIO. The GIO created an ArcGIS map for Boone County, layered it using 2020 Census blocks, and ran the population figures. We were able to compare their numbers to our hand count method where we used the 2020 Census block maps in print.

Additional files are here under Boone Co: P:\LDO\Census\2020 Census Library Redistricting Files

Muncie-Center Township Public Library and Yorktown Public Library (Delaware County)

In 2013, Mt. Pleasant Township and Yorktown consolidated into the new Town of Yorktown.
See Yorktown/Mt. Pleasant Township Consolidation. Yorktown Public Library serves the newly consolidated Town of Yorktown, except for the area of Yorktown annexed by Muncie. These annexed areas consist of the following 2020 Census blocks: 2001, 2002, 2003, 2013, and 2014 within 2020 Census Tract 24.01 and 2022 within Census Tract 24.04. For 2030 redistricting, view the current 2030 Census block maps to identify the current tracts and blocks that make up these parts of Muncie within Yorktown. Consult with the Indiana GIO to create correct maps.

To calculate the population total for Muncie-Center Township Public Library, use the redistricting data (PL 94-171) for Center Township. Use block-level redistricting data for the blocks in Yorktown that are annexed by Muncie.
Then, you must wait until the Census Bureau releases the next iteration of census data to access the population data on partial geographies (parts of Muncie in Hamilton, Harrison, and Liberty Townships).

Add Center Township to the parts of Muncie in the three townships and include the total population from the blocks that make up the parts of Muncie in Yorktown. Enter your work in Table 1.

The library district boundary map that splits Jefferson Township is in the shared drive:
LDO >> 2020 Census Library Redistricting File >> Milford PL-Nappannee PL.

To calculate the population totals for the districts by hand, use the redistricting data (PL 94-171) for each block total within Jefferson Township. See the 2030 Census block maps from the Census Bureau for Jefferson Township, Kosciusko County to determine the 2030 Census tracts and blocks that will be used to divide the township's blocks between Milford Public Library (eastern half) & Nappanee Public Library (western half) according to the library district boundary map.

Files from the previous years can give you the 2010 and 2020 census tract and block numbers that were used. This can help you determine which 2030 tracts and blocks to choose on the map. Use the boundary map with the block maps to select the blocks you need, pull the redistricting data, and add up 1) the Jefferson Township blocks for Milford Public Library and 2) the Jefferson Township blocks for Nappanee Public Library.

For Milford PL's total, use the redistricting data (PL 94-171) for Van Buren Township. Add this to the census block total for the eastern half of Jefferson Township. Enter the total population in Table 1.

For Nappanee PL's total, you must wait until the Census Bureau releases the next iteration of census data to access the population data on partial geographies (part of Nappanee in Locke Township). Add this to the block total for the western half of Jefferson Township. Enter the total population in Table 1.
